

CAROLINE GREVILLE-MORRIS*Production Designer*

*Caroline is one of the pioneers of a new generation of Production Designers who honed the tools of their trade not in the drafting office, but on the job: art directing in the fertile and ground breaking world of music videos in the late 80s. With an academic design background, the hands-on way of working that she learned on a highly diverse collection of music clips and commercials stands her in great stead with the problem solving aspects of film making and being able to turn her hand to any number of practical skills. (This also goes down well with crews who know that she is not asking them to do something she has not, at some time had to do herself!) This approach also manifests itself in her collaborative attitude to other departments, namely camera, wardrobe and visual effects with whom she always works closely. Her technical skills teamed with an encyclopaedic knowledge of Art and Design history have created a collection of striking looking films and commercials, from the out-and-out grunge in the war fantasy Mutant Chronicles, to the elegant contemporary style of Jonathan Lynn's Wild Target.*
