NICOLA QUILTER

Director

Nicola's most recent directing work is the film 'Treasure', commissioned through the BBC's Culture in Quarantine programme and now available on the BBC's iPlayer. She previously made her mark as a director on her 2017 short 'Prawn', which, with a cast and crew of over a hundred people, was shot in two days.

She started her career as an actor, appearing as a resident character in 'Home and Away' and other productions for BBC, as well as for Channel 7 and Channel 9 in Australia, and went on to write, produce and direct numerous short films under her production banner, Rocket Room.

As a screenwriter, she has had scripts picked up by the USA's Red List, Wescreeplay, and Global Genesis, and she's also developing a cross-genre thriller/sci-fi/crime series for television called 'Combustione'.

Nicola is based in London and available for work worldwide.
